L&I gets 'professional' uniform makeover

Property owners will now have a way to spot city building inspectors from a mile away as the Department of Licenses and Inspections unveiled new uniforms Thursday.

The new look is designed to help the public identify the department's 60 operations and construction inspectors and set them apart from potential scammers, officials said. They also said it is intended to highlight inspectors as public safety officers like firefighters and police.

"It is a best practice across the county," L&I Commissioner Fran Burns said. "If you look at the water department, Verizon, most of our field agencies ... they wear professional attire."

Burns, who is stepping down June 1 to work as executive director for the Pennsylvania Intergovernmental Cooperation Authority, added that the uniforms also enhance the professionalism and accountability of L&I.

The attire consists of a blue collared shirt or a black short-sleeve polo shirt with the department's name and logo prominently displayed. They will cost L&I about $47,000 this year and $8,000 annually, Burns said.

SEPTA Board budget OK'd

CENTER CITY. SEPTA's board approved a $1.28 billion operating budget Thursday that does not raise fares or reduce service.

The fiscal year 2013 spending plan represents nearly a 3 percent increase over the current fiscal year, largely due to increases in health care, prescriptions and claims.

The board also approved a $303 million capital budget, which is down 25 percent from three years ago due to reductions in state funding. SEPTA again has deferred projects.

Twins killed by mother, police say

TACONY. A woman allegedly suffocated two of her children, drugged a third child and attempted suicide Thursday evening.

The deaths occurred on Ditman Street, where the woman allegedly smothered her 1.5-year-old twins, one boy and one girl. Police said she allegedly gave pills to another daughter, 4. Her condition was not immediately known Thursday night. The unidentified woman then tried to kill herself. METRO/AW

Nutter protests outside school at Romney visit

Democratic mayor picks unusual place to call out Romney: School run by Kenny Gamble ● Music mogul's exec says meeting wasn't simple politics

Philadelphia's music mogul and philanthropist Kenny Gamble and Republican presidential candidate Mitt Romney don't seem on the surface to have a whole lot in common, but during a surprising meeting yesterday in West Philadelphia, they had the same message: achievement gaps in American schools is a major education issue.

While a small band of protesters in this strongly liberal city rallied outside — though the group included two high-profile participants, Mayor Michael Nutter and District Attorney Seth Williams — Gamble and other Philadelphia educators hosted Romney to discuss school reform in a little publicized forum. It took place at Blufield Charter School, which was founded two years ago by Gamble's Universal Companies.

Universal CEO Rahim Islam made clear afterward that Gamble doesn't endorse Romney or any other politician publicly.

"He has just as many problems with every politician when it comes to who can deliver for the African-American community," Islam said. "When we look at disparity [in quality education options] against the African American community, something has to be done rather quickly."

12 Number who participated in the roundtable discussion, including Romney.

Those in attendance also included David Fattah, Steven Morris, David Hardy, Nicholas Torres and Patricia Coulter.

Romney, according to Islam, didn't go into much detail about his plans for education reform, but did outline three broad solutions to improving urban education: good teachers, parent participation and strong leadership.

"How could you disagree with that?" Islam said.

Romney's broad education reform

WEST PHILLY. Romney's visit, the first of his campaign to an impoverished urban area, was met with protests and criticism.

"I don't know why this guy's here," Nutter said outside the charter school. "[He] has suddenly somehow found West Philadelphia, somehow now wants to talk about education."

Islam said the event should not be taken as strictly political or staged to bring Romney's campaign closer to the inner city.

"We clearly have a difference of opinion that talking to people means you're embracing someone," Islam said.

"We want to know what you can do, what you're thinking about," he said of hearing Romney's proposals for reform. METRO/BXM

City budget lacks traction in Council

The ongoing tax reform saga trudged on in City Council on Thursday. Members argued about Mayor Michael Nutter administration's proposed shift to the Actual Value Initiative that would generate an estimated $94 million in additional revenue, currently earmarked for the School District, by basing real estate taxes on properties' true market rate rather than on a pre-determined ratio.

Council President Darrell Clarke introduced a package of bills that would net funds through alternative means in the case that AVI is unable to gain the nine votes necessary to pass. The move came amid divisions among Council members over whether or not to delay the tax proposal until they gain more information about its technicalities.

▶ Clarke

Further complicating the matter is uncertainty surrounding two measures in Harrisburg that must pass for the city to implement AVI. The legislation would provide relief to those whose properties are assessed above a certain dollar amount and to change the tax rate.

"The bills may possibly raise revenue by increasing the Use and Occupancy Tax within the School District," Clarke said of his propositions, noting each had two versions: one to be employed in the case that AVI becomes a reality and one if it does not. "The other allows that increased real estate taxes would go to the School District."

Clarke said his legislation would generate closer to $85 million. "It's rare individuals get what they ask for," he said when asked about the difference between that number and the amount the School District was hoping to see.

Clarke said no date for a vote is set yet. Historically, Council approved budgets by May 31, but the strict deadline is June 30, the end of the fiscal year.

SEPTA-Council spat leads to lease holdup

CITY HALL. Councilman Wilson Goode Jr. called for increased transparency and communication between SEPTA and City Council when a bill authorizing SEPTA to enter into a lease agreement with the Parks and Recreation Commissioner for a parcel of land in Strawberry Mansion was called up for a vote Thursday.

"I'm voting against this bill today simply as a matter of principle," he said, adding that at a recent hearing, the administration never provided him with an answer as to why the lease term couldn't be shorter than 50 years.

Clarke decided to hold the bill out of respect for Goode. "Because this is my bill, I'm going to hold it until you get your answer," he told the councilman.

Fidelity, Knight problems add to Nasdaq's Facebook woes

The repercussions from Facebook's botched initial public offering deepened on Thursday as Fidelity Investments found itself dealing with "thousands" of customers with order problems and Knight Capital demanded tens of millions of dollars in compensation from Nasdaq for trading-related losses.

A technical glitch delayed Facebook's market debut by half an hour on Friday and many client orders were delayed subsequently, costing some investors and traders big losses as the stock price dropped after an initial gain

The exchange operator is facing lawsuits from investors and threats of legal action from brokers that have been compensating customers for delayed trades.

Action on Facebook stock has essentially become secondary to the fallout from the IPO — its price, its size, its execution and questions about selective disclosure of its financial prospects.

U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority and Massachusetts Secretary of the Commonwealth William Galvin are looking into how the IPO was handled. The U.S. Senate Banking Committee is also reviewing the matter. REUTERS

Possible problem

Nasdaq also has to contend with the outside prospect that it could entirely lose the Facebook listing after having just obtained it.

Long-term market play: Facebook seen at $22

Facebook Inc. may fall more than 42 percent below its initial public offering price by the end of the year, according to bets by structured-product investors.

She most actively traded structured products tied to Facebook since its IPO have been so-called put warrants, whose buyers profit if the shares drop below a pre-defined level, in some cases as low as $22, data compiled by Bloomberg show. UBS AG, Commerzbank AG and Julius Baer Group Ltd. are among lenders that listed 1,504 warrants and certificates in Europe linked to shares of the social networking site that were offered at $38.

Since raising $16 billion on May 17 in the biggest technology IPO of all time, Facebook has tumbled. BLOOMBERG

▶ Advisers familiar with the situation at Fidelity said many investors are now finding out, nearly a week after the fact, that their orders were not executed at the prices they thought.

EU urges Greece to stay, plans for possible exit

BRUSSELS. European Union leaders, advised by senior officials to prepare contingency plans in case Greece decides to quit the single currency, urged the country to stay the course on austerity and complete the reforms demanded under its bailout program.

After nearly six hours of talks held during an informal dinner, leaders said they were committed to Greece remaining in the euro zone, but it had to stick to its side of the bargain too, a commitment that will mean a heavy cost for Greeks.

"We want Greece to stay in the euro, but we insist that Greece sticks to commitments that it has agreed to," German Chancellor Angela Merkel told reporters after a Wednesday evening summit in Brussels dragged long into the night. REUTERS

Opinion

TOM FOREMAN
POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT FOR CNN

WALKING THE PRESIDENTIAL PLANK

The heaving surf and blustery winds of the presidential race provoked a rash act on Mitt Romney's would-be ship of state this week. With little warning and undeniable bravery (or foolishness) Captain Romney stalked out to the edge of a political plank to make a bold proclamation about what his first term would bring.

"I can tell you that over a period of four years, by virtue of the policies that we put in place, we get the unemployment rate down to 6 percent, or perhaps a little lower," he told Time's Mark Halperin.

And in the waters below, the political critics beat the waves to foam and gnashed their teeth, because they know if he is elected and this plank breaks, he's shark bait.

Of course, that has never stopped candidates before. Oh sure, most of the time they stick with vague pledges to bring immeasurable things like, oh say, hope and change. But in every election, the big players always figure they have to put a few solid promises into play, and the unemployment situation is always an attractive target.

President Barack Obama has strolled along the same plank. Just before taking office, his team issued an assessment of the stimulus plan that projected it would keep unemployment below 8 percent. Contrary to Republican claims, this was not precisely a promise, and the administration has acknowledged that their team's read on the economy's resilience was overly optimistic. Still, the impression remains among many voters that Mr. Obama made a pledge and unemployment has been above 8 percent pretty much ever since.

The real problem with making promises about the unemployment rate is that they are almost always destined to be broken. There are simply too many factors involved — factors that presidents can't control. Still, you can understand the appeal for the candidates: Even if it's risky, the view of the White House is just magnificent from the end of the plank.

'Men in Black 3'

Director: Barry Sonnenfeld
Cast: Will Smith, Tommy Lee Jones, Josh Brolin
Rating: PG-13
Grade: ●●○○○

If this acting thing doesn't work out for Josh Brolin, he does have a future as a Tommy Lee Jones impersonator. He's that good. But despite a good bad guy, some cool creatures and Brolin, the movie just doesn't have the charm or the energy of the first two movies. It is reminiscent of another effects-laden Will Smith movie — "Wild Wild West."

The most enjoyable moments include Smith literally hurtling through time, the idea that Mick Jagger is an alien sent to the planet to breed with Earth women and the battle in the Chinese restaurant. All cool moments, but the magic of the first film is gone — even the fun stuff in this film seems to evaporate as soon the next scene starts.

RICHARD CROUSE

WILSON WEBB

Josh Brolin, who plays Tommy Lee Jones' 1969 counterpart in 'Men in Black 3,' takes our time-travel pop quiz

Brolin in Black

Josh Brolin knew he was taking on a challenge when he signed on to play a younger version of Tommy Lee Jones in the time travel-themed "Men in Black 3." But how ready was he for the challenge of Metro's Time-Travel Pop Quiz?

1 First of all, how many gigawatts are required to energize the flux capacitor?
Um ... 360,000?
Nope, 1.21.
I'm glad I got that so wrong. [Laughs]

2 While time-traveling, can you interact with your past or future self, or would that cause a catastrophic event?
It would cause a catastrophic event. But Boris the Animal does [in "Men in Black 3"]. I just know that time-travel, as is understood by Hollywood and their storytelling, has been if you in any way affect the past that you go into, that it always has a negative effect on the future. That's what I've been told, at least.

Q&A

OK, you can only make one time-travel trip. Would you rather go forward or backward?

Wow. That's a great question. Forward, for sure. Selfishly, I'd like to backward because there's a lot of people that I would love to meet, you know? Obviously a lot of very important people from your Jesuses to your Mahatma Gandhis to the obvious. But if you go forward, you can see what actually is the consequence of what we're doing now, come back and actually have proof that will happen if we don't change. But then everyone will think you're crazy, of course. But I already have to deal with that anyway, so that's really par for the course for me. [Laughs]

3 Speaking of: Say you travel back in time and you arrive standing alone in front of a young Adolf Hitler. What do you do?
Befriend. That'd be the best way to get in there, and then you can detour him. Befriend and detour.

4 What kind of adventure did Bill and Ted have?
An excellent one. When I met Keanu Reeves, that was the first thing I said. I was like, "Bill and Ted, right on dude!" I did "SNL" recently and we did "The Californians," and I think that was what I did, some version of guys I grew up with and Keanu Reeves in that movie. It's funny because they came up to me during rehearsal and were like, "We'd like you to do more of a California voice." And I said, "Dude, honestly, being from California, I'm doing the only voice that's California. Everybody else is doing the funny version. I think I'm just doing the accurate version."

5 In "Terminator," is Arnold Schwarzenegger a cyborg, an alien or a wacky twin?
A cyborg, of course. But a different type of cyborg than Robert Patrick in No. 2, right? What's it called?
The T-1000.
The T-1000. Very good, man. You know your stuff.

6 Which movie, in your opinion, gets time-travel the most right?
God, man. "Time Bandits" by Terry Gilliam was probably my favorite time-travel movie that I've seen, just because it was so fantastical, and Terry Gilliam is such a brilliant director. Like "Brazil" and "Fear and Loathing," the lenses that he uses are so warped and all that. It's brilliant. I like that movie a lot.
A lot of people say "Back to the Future."
To me, "Time Bandits" was a different level of it. "Back to the Future" is fun and kind of like, [in a Valley Girl voice] "Oh my God, it's so much fun! He's skateboarding and it's a rocket! Oh my God!" [Laughs] I haven't seen "Time Bandits" in a while, I need to watch it again.

7 I'll give you a chance to redeem yourself on the gigawatts question if you can tell me how fast the DeLoreon in "Back to the Future" has to go to travel through time.
Oh God, I know this. Sixty-five?
Eighty-eight.
F—! I wouldn't get very far.

Coming back for the kids

Will Smith speaks on returning to movies with 'Men in Black 3' before he goes 'butt and gut'

WILSON WEBB

It's been nearly four years since Will Smith has had a movie out — his last being the weepy dud "Seven Pounds" — so you'll understand if he wanted to ease his way back into things with something a bit familiar. "I haven't worked in three years, so I wanted to put on some shoes that I knew fit," Smith says. Hence "Men in Black 3," re-teaming Smith with Tommy Lee Jones as the black-suited, Ray Bans-donning men of mystery keeping Earth safe from aliens its citizens aren't even aware of. This time, they toss in the element of time-travel — but it's still very much a "Men in Black" film.

"It was important for me, having been away that long, to come back in a way that I was comfortable and to come back with a project that was kid-friendly," Smith says. "That was something that Eddie Murphy said to me a few years ago. He said, 'Man, if you're lucky enough to be in this business, every 20 years you have to go back and get the kids.'"

That wasn't the only piece of wisdom from his elders Smith has held on to, as it turns out. "I was in Australia in 1990 with Sylvester Stallone, Arnold Schwarzenegger and Bruce Willis, and they were opening Planet Hollywood," Smith remembers. "I go sit there with those guys, and Arnold says, 'Young man, I want you to know that you cannot be a movie star only in the United States. You're only a movie star if they know you around the world.' They put that idea into my mind very clearly, and then from that point that's when I started to make it a point to open in new markets."

So with that kind of global stardom in mind, does that mean Smith will continue easing his way back into acting, possibly with a visit to another popular franchise like "Bad Boys"? Smith is not so sure. "I love making those movies. It's Miami, the tight T-shirt and fast cars," he says. "But just at this point in my career, the material has to be right. I'm 43. I'm looking at maybe seven more years where I can run and jump a little bit, and then I'm going butt and gut for the rest of my career."

Master of her 'Make-Believe'

Santi White on the new Santigold album and how two years of touring behind her debut helped her reach more fans How she crafts her live show to include 'high school play' props And on singing 'I'm the best!' to herself

Santigold became cemented into the lore of summer music three years ago. It all started when an eccentric guy dancing alone on a patch of grass far away from the stage at the Sasquatch Music Festival attracted hundreds of ecstatic revelers to join him, and eventually 5.9 million viewers on YouTube. All the while, singer Santi White was chanting a triumphant chorus of "I've got to be unstoppable."

"That was amazing," says White, reflecting back on the moment. "When we were onstage, we noticed something far off in the distance and just saw this huge part of the crowd running across the field, and I remember afterward we were like, 'Did you see that? What happened?' And then when somebody sent it to me on YouTube I couldn't believe it. I've heard that the video has been used in leadership classes."

This moment is a good metaphor for everything that the music of Santigold represents. The songs are playful, but they are firmly rooted in the notion of spreading positivity. Releasing a self-titled debut in 2009, Santigold toured for two years and built a loyal following, so that when she released her sophomore album, "Master of My Make-Believe" earlier this month, the response was not entirely unlike the dancers running across the field to join in on the fun.

"It's great as an artist, starting out, to just spend some time building a fan base," she says. "I was really grateful that the demand was there for so long."

The live show is equally deserving of that demand, with its cross of high energy and high camp. Robotic backup singers flank White and occasionally bust into funny, old-school dance moves. Backup musicians wear rubber flat-top wigs, making them look like comic book versions of ancient Egyptians. Oh, and there's also a two-person horsey that comes out to dance.

"I just closed my eyes one day and I saw lassos and a horse, and I was like, 'We need lassos and a horse!' and everybody looked at me like I was crazy," she says of the eureka moment. "And then me and my girls went online and we found this cool horse outfit and we were like, 'That's the one!' I wanted it to be theatrical in a very do-it-yourself sort of way, like a high school play."

'GO!' for it

"Master of My Make-Believe" opens in a call to arms, with the song, "GO!" Against electronic pulses and jungle drums, Santi White sings about how haters have tried to steal her power away, "but they couldn't take it."

"There's truth to all of these songs," she says, "and this one is just watching people in the super-mainstream pick and choose and take bits of what's going on in the underground. … Also, that song is kind of like a tongue-in-cheek fun song. They're kind of like mantra songs for me, where you just need to be like, 'I'm the best!' Especially when you're working on a new record, and you really don't feel like that. … It's nice to be able to sing songs like that to make you feel good."

Summer's biggest

Radiohead
May 31 and June 1, Prudential Center, Newark, N.J.
Before you write off Radiohead as music that's strictly for earbud listening, you should know that they've been busting out a lot of "OK Computer" songs at recent shows. They've also retooled most of the songs from last fall's "King of Limbs" to rock way more.

Brothers of the Sun Tour
June 16, Lincoln Financial Field
Don't you dare call what Kenny Chesney and Tim McGraw have got going on between them a bromance! These two country giants have cultivated a relationship that they say makes them "Brothers of the Sun." The tour marks the first time these two cowboys (both of whom "Feel Like a Rock Star") have hit the road together in 10 years. For the tour they're bringing along Jake Owen and Grace Potter and the Nocturnals, the latter of whom can really rock a flying V guitar!

Nicki Minaj

Wired 96.5 Fest, June 1
Susquehanna Bank Center
The hip-hop/R&B station-curated fest brings out the hottest names on the radio and beyond. Catch early sets by up-and-coming rappers with big buzz like Diggy Simmons and Kirko Bangz. And stick around for tried-and-true headliners like Rick Ross and Nicki Minaj. Also filling out the bill are acts who could be headliners, like B.o.B., Big Sean and T-Pain.

Neil Diamond
June 18, Wells Fargo Center
Need a few reasons to check out this concert? How about "Shilo" "Red Red Wine," "Forever in Blue Jeans" and "Sweet Caroline"? Sweet freaking Caroline! Not only did he write these hits, but he sells them so hard in concert, wearing glittery garments that should (but don't) contradict his status as a top-notch songwriter.

Dave Matthews Band
June 26 and 27, Susquehanna Bank Center
On one hilarious sketch on the "Saturday Night Live" finale last weekend, Bill Hader began by saying, "Hi, I'm Dave Matthews. Remember me? From college?" Apparently a lot of you do, as Dave-demand is high enough for a two-night stand at the Susquehanna Bank Center next month.

The Beach Boys
June 27, PNC Bank Arts Center
Celebrating their 50th anniversary, this touring incarnation actually features all surviving members of the Beach Boys. This is noteworthy because over the past few years, a "Beach Boys" concert could mean just one Beach Boy or another on the stage with a bunch of younger dudes in Hawaiian shirts. But this lineup actually features Brian Wilson, the group's resident genius songwriter who is touring with the band for the first time in more than 25 years. Whether they're picking up good vibrations or just picking up bags of cash, the tour is a rarity not to be missed.

Coldplay
July 5 and 6, Wells Fargo Center
Coldplay continue to rise to the occasion and be the arena band that Gen Y needs them to be. Most recently, they busted out a spirited and sweet cover of the Beastie Boys' "Fight for your Right" on the day that MCA died. Plus, word is that they hand out light-up wristbands to attendees that makes for a cool concert effect.

Roger Waters
July 14, Citizens Bank Park
The most enduring wonder about "The Wall" is that it's an album about isolating yourself, but it continues to reach out and find new audiences. When Pink Floyd attempted to tour for the album shortly after releasing it in 1979, their production was so elaborate that they could only stage the show at four venues. Thankfully, Floyd founder Roger Waters figured out how to bring it to more venues.

Aerosmith
July 21, Wells Fargo Center
Aerosmith are a national treasure! Think about it: In an age where it's a possibility that a Tupac ghost could appear on any stage anywhere, it's a marvel that a real live classic band like the bad boys from Boston have all of their original members after all the years of sex, drugs and rock 'n' roll. Not only are they all still living, but they're all still rocking and continuing to make vital music.

Enrique Iglesias and Jennifer Lopez, July 29
Atlantic City Boardwalk Hall
J-to-tha-Lo! E-to-tha-Ig! OK, the second one doesn't quite have the same ring to it, does it? But this co-headlining tour really has high potential for spicy duets.

Drake
June 9, Susquehanna Bank Center
The Canadian-based rapper has loaded his "Club Paradise Tour" with such a giant entourage of openers that it was tempting to put this concert in the "festivals" category. But as great as openers J. Cole, Meek Mill, Waka Flocka Flame and 2 Chainz are, this is Drizzy's show. Recent set lists have shown that he performs more than 20 songs each night, drawing heavily from last fall's "Take Care."

Drizzy gets busy with the help of some friends.

Bruce Springsteen & the E Street Band
Sept. 2 and 3, Citizens Bank Park
Experiencing the Boss in concert is a rite of passage. Yes, it's mostly wealthy white men in khakis who continue to honor this ritual, but don't let them distract you. The magic is on the stage, where the 62-year-old Springsteen somehow summons an energy that could wear out a performer one third of his age. Also, "Thunder Road"!

Madonna
Aug. 28, Wells Fargo Center
The mood of Madonna's most recent release, "MDNA," feels like the soundtrack to a midlife crisis. For a concertgoing audience, this can be a good thing if she indulges in over-the-top stunts and theatrics and plays a set that lives in the present rather than getting hung up on nostalgia.

The Boss

New album releases

JUNE

Usher
'Looking 4 Myself,' June 12
Usher is an artist comfortable enough in his success that he is free to push artistic boundaries. For his seventh album, he's tapped Diplo and Swedish House Mafia to produce, which means it's more daring. He's been calling the style "revolutionary pop."

Justin Bieber
'Believe,' June 19
Biebs has enough sense to wait until the week after his mentor drops his latest "Looking 4 Myself," but by all accounts Bieber has found a new version of himself with his official follow-up to 2010's "My World 2.0." Sources say that his world 3.0 is a lot more Timberlakian — yes that's a word — and grown-up. It's about time somebody got to bringing sexy back.

Fiona Apple
'The Idler Wheel,' June 19
Before you get all bummed that the title of Fiona's seven-years-in-the-making fourth album is only three words long, know that the full title is actually "The Idler Wheel is Wiser than the Driver of the Screw and Whipping Cords Will Serve you More Than the Ropes Will Ever Do." So, yeah, she is in true Fiona form here — but she's good-weird rather than onstage-meltdown-weird. Lead single "Every Single Night" is begging to make for some road-trip bonding for you and your "frehhhh ehhhh ehhh ehh ends."

JULY

Nas
'Life is Good,' July 17
Nas' 10th album has been a slow train coming. The first single, "Nasty," was released last August, and since then two other tunes have leaked. And if they're any indication, the Queensbridge rapper's old-school approach still sounds fresh.

AUGUST

2 Chainz
'Based on a T.R.U. Story,' Aug. 14
With the amount of anticipation surrounding this debut, "T.R.U." could be this year's "Take Care." Though 2 Chainz is from Georgia, the comparison to Drake is fitting, as the Canadian rapper turns in an intense cameo on the freaky lead single, "No Lie."

Alanis Morisette, 'Havoc and Bright Lights,' Aug. 28
Alanis is back to that glossy melodic rock that put her on the map in the '90s.

Today, Lindsay Lohan has found a new drug, Jerry Seinfeld is exploring the history of Twitter, Roseanne Barr must not watch "Real Housewives" and Conan O'Brien is taking advantage of the European crisis.

@lindsaylohan: working is the best medicine.

@JerrySeinfeld: "sex,worms" is what I believe the first tweet was. Posted by a sparrow on a branch.

@TheRealRoseanne: now that women are a majority in the world, patriarchy is dead (though still in death throes)-peace will just happen now

Weekend swoon: Efron in Cannes

We didn't really want to talk about how Nicole Kidman relieves Zac Efron's jellyfish sting in their new film, "Paperboy." But we needed an excuse to run this photo as large as possible, so here goes: She had to pee on him. And yes, it was awkward. "I don't think I was supposed to be comfortable," the actor said at a press conference. "This character is learning the ways of the world. That can be uncomfortable."

Pitt living it up at Cannes Film Fest

Although he insists there's no date set for his wedding to Angelina Jolie, Brad Pitt has been treating the Cannes Film Festival like a bit of a bachelor party.

At a black-tie after-party for his new film "Killing Them Softly," the actor partied with everyone from Kylie Minogue to Diddy — who stopped by for a congrats drink before getting back to his yacht — and put back some expensive booze. "With Brad's impending wedding, it almost had the feel of a sophisticated pre-bachelor party, with bottles of $390 Johnnie Walker whiskey and plenty of cigars," a guest who we assume didn't arrive by yacht tells Us Weekly. "It was definitely a night for Brad to remember."

You'd think so. But then again, swanky whiskey with Diddy on the Riviera might be Brad Pitt's equivalent of warm wine-coolers with the cat.

▶ Scruff, shades and whiskey: Brad's having a good weekend.

Straight up now, Paula

No matter what an unauthorized Simon Cowell biography says, Paula Abdul claims she never had a relationship with her former "American Idol" boss. "It would never, ever happen because he's selfish and he'd be a selfish lover and he'd call his own name out during sex if it ever happened," Abdul tells Wendy Williams in an interview.

Paula, why do we have a feeling that you're speaking from experience here?

Come along and ride on a fantastic voyage

Mayor Nutter participated in National Ride Your Bike to Work Day. While bicyclists have myriad reasons for pushing pedals, I have at least three. First, combining my commute and exercise routine leaves more time for my family. Secondly, it's a lot faster to get around the city than clogging up the streets with another vehicle. And third, it's green. Yes, I sweat, but a shower and deodorant at work takes care of it. And as for my clothing, I simply bring it in the day before, so I don't "walk around with rumpled clothes".

I applaud the city for setting aside designated bike/bus lanes, but too often they are clogged with distracted, cell phone-wielding cage drivers who feel a few seconds of their time is worth more than my life, forcing me onto the sidewalk to escape the temporary hazard. If another 30,000 bikes took to the streets, the corresponding reduction in vehicular congestion would make for a much more pleasant commuting experience for everyone and Philly could become phat for another reason. Now get out there and ride! CAMERON SMITH, VIA E-MAIL

Thank you for the teachable moment

RE: "'SAVE OUR SCHOOLS?' NO, SAVE OUR JOBS": I object to your cover headline scurrilously implying that education workers don't care about kids. Would you dare to make such a baseless accusation if the workers in question were police or firefighters? ERIC HAMELL, VIA E-MAIL

Fire response is a hot topic

RE: "FIRE COMMISH FEELS HEAT BUT WON'T RESIGN": We all know that when you cut a budget a department won't feel the cuts until a few years have passed; the person responsible for those cuts is Mayor Nutter. My family has fire personnel in it; they all agree that when the funerals are held, and Mayor Nutter enters to pay his respects that every firefighter should turn their backs to him showing solidarity, and also to let the mayor know he is wrong and unwelcome at firefighter funerals. DANIEL J. COLL, VIA E-MAIL

More important than sacking Eli

I'm writing to encourage you to increase your coverage of Pfc. Bradley Manning's pretrial hearings and eventual court martial. The government's treatment of Manning, both during his pretrial confinement and in the courtroom, has been appalling, and the American people need to hear about it. This case will have far-reaching implications for future whistle-blowers, journalists and activists. It's important to prevent the government and military from abusing its own power, for the credibility of the nation, as much as for its leaders. MARK RICHARDS, VIA E-MAIL

Looking for a villain-elle

RE: "POETRY, NOT JUST FOR INFIDELS ANYMORE": Richard Sherman is absolutely correct; the Taliban are a collection of murderous and sacrilegious thugs. I await Mr. Sherman's equally brutal rejection of the North Carolina Baptist Church, whose pastor, Charles L. Worley, recently called for death camps for gays and lesbians. JOSEPH CONNELL, VIA E-MAIL

Horoscope

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. If you feel insecure for some reason, be careful not to slip up and try to impress others with false airs or pretenses. You're perfectly good being just the way you are.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. You'll be sorry if you confuse wishful thinking with intuitive insights. If your hunches don't play out, you'll end up being unhappy and sorely disappointed.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. It's more than likely that you might not be as good at reading the intentions of others as you think you are. Don't make the mistake of judging your friends' actions in advance.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. It might take more effort than usual to convince your close associates that your idea and concepts are good. People in general tend to be a bit more skeptical than usual at this point.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Play it smart and don't offer any unsolicited advice to co-workers regarding something you know little about. If you're wrong, it'll make you look bad.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Treat the property of others with the same care and respect you show to all your possessions. If a mishap should occur through carelessness, you will be held accountable.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Don't make the mistake of assuming your mate will automatically be in accord with you regarding a vital matter. Don't be sorry afterward, check first and avoid some serious conflict.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Have all the instructions in front of you when attempting to do something new and difficult. If your memory is faulty, you might not be able to correct any mistakes on your part.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Steer clear of an involvement in which the elements of chance are extremely pronounced. Regardless of how lucky you usually are, the odds might not hold up this time.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Your advice to someone who needs a lot of counsel might not be sound. In your desire to spare this person any pain, you might not be as frank as you should be.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Watch what comes out of your mouth very closely. Usually you're pretty good at keeping promised secrets, but during this cycle you could easily slip and tell what you shouldn't.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Sharpen up if you find yourself negotiating with a shrewd horse trader. If you are not careful, your desire to get a bargain could cause you to slip and negotiate in a way that works against you. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Phantasm sings a different tune

NILES WEISS

When Phantasm moved to Philadelphia from the rolling countryside of upstate New York in 2007, the prog/hardcore/metal/melodic-rocking trio was intent on discovering their musical identity. This weekend marks a significant turning point in that journey with the album release show of their most mainstream-friendly offering to date, "Impossible Machines."

After nearly 10 years together, Phantasm is steering away from the dour, uber-serious hardcore of their adolescent heroes such as Refused, Dillinger Escape Plan and Drive Like Jehu.

"I think a lot of singers go through a phase where they wanna be a hardcore screamer. But me? I discovered I'm not so good at doing that," says singer Steven Rosplock.

There is nary a single scream or screech on "Impossible Machines." Instead, the vocals drift closer to Zeppelin-esque, pitch-perfect howls.

"It's about an emphasis on the vocals and the melodies, rather than the instrumentals. As a band, we've always worked from the instrumentals first, but we wanted to make sure there was something to sing along with," says drummer Jay Yachetta.

And while a prog-ish undercurrent can still be felt throughout all eight tracks, Phantasm is more concerned about the casual listener than ever before.

"We started to discover that people really responded to the hookier moments in our songs, while we were all about playing some sort of polyrhythm that was twisting people's minds around," says Rosplock. "But that only gets you so far — that kind of self-serving, amusing-yourself way of doing things."

FUNDRAISERS

'Let's Go Eat' charity dinner

May 31, 5:30-10 p.m., $150, Moshulu, 401 S. Columbus Blvd.
www.hunterpence.ticketleap.com
Hunter Pence's first fundraiser as a Phillie will help raise money for Make-A-Wish Philadelphia and Susquehanna Valley, Philabundance and Phillies Charities, Inc. There's the usual food, drinks and dancing, but also a ping-pong tournament with the chance to get crushed by the all-star outfielder.

Mural Arts' 2012 Wall Ball

May 31, 6:30-10:30 p.m.
$40-$500, Vie, 600 N. Broad St.
www.muralarts.com

ILYA S. SAVENOK/GETTY IMAGES

▶ The Roots are the Wall Ball guests of honor.

Frequent Philly MVPs The Roots are the main event at this annual fundraiser for the Mural Arts Program, which has just launched the Roots Mural Project. As for the food, Jose Garces and Marc Vetri are also swinging by.

ARTS

'Identity Crisis': Luna Theater Play Festival

May 30-June 3
$23-$28, Playground @ The Adrienne, 2030 Sansom St.
www.lunatheater.org
Pack it up, pack it in: Luna's quick-hit program features 10 world premiere plays running at 10 minutes each.

'Angels in America, Part 1'

Through July 1
The Wilma Theater
www.wilmatheater.org
Set in 1985 New York, this Tony/Pulitzer winner about the dawn of the AIDS epidemic concludes the Wilma's season; part 2 will kick off its next.

FOOD AND DRINK

Morgan's Pier opening

Friday, 221 N. Columbus Blvd.
www.morganspier.com
Just in time for Memorial Day weekend, this new riverfront beer garden from the team behind Union Transfer hits the deck. In addition to the 20 drafts and craft cans, look for a menu by Meme chef David Katz.

Phillies specials at Lemon Hill

747 N. 25th St.
www.lemonhillphilly.com
Stop by this kicked-up corner bar in Fairmount during weekday games (Monday-Thursday) for $5 slider specials, $7 Old Fashioned cocktails and $2 High Lifes.

Sunday happy hour at Ela

5-6:30 p.m., 627 S. Third St.
www.elaphilly.com
In addition to the usual-suspect weekday happy hour, Queen Village's Ela is introducing boozy Sunday specials. Chef Jason Cichonski is serving up a snack menu ($6-$14) that includes "Tots His Way" — sub in hand-rolled potato gnocchi for frozen hash browns — while the drinks go down like this: $3 drafts, $5 wine, $6 cocktails.

Zahav's 'Down the Shore' party

July 3, 6 p.m.
$75, 237 St. James Place
www.zahavrestaurant.com
We know it's only Memorial Day, but Zahav's annual celebration of Jersey girls and funnel cake tends to sell out. This year they're going with a zombie luau theme, so start working on your shark-bite makeup.

Al fresco at Le Virtu

Wednesday, 6-9 p.m.
1927 East Passyunk Ave.
www.levirtu.com
Le Virtu's outdoor garden space, Il Campo, opens next week with a spring-themed menu ($45 per person) inspired by Chef Joe Cicala's recent trip to Italy.

CASINOS

Fireworks at Sugar House

Saturday, 10 p.m.
www.sugarhousecasino.com
You'll have to be 21 to watch from Sugarhouse's river deck — where live entertainment starts at 6 p.m. — but everyone is invited down to the river path for the show and summery snacks (snow cone alert!).

Down the shore

Memorial Day weekend at Revel

Boardwalk and Connecticut Avenue, Atlantic City
www.revelresorts.com
The main event here is obviously Beyonce's four-night (Friday-Monday) show at the new casino's Ovation Hall. But the resort is also offering special restaurant tastings, slot play giveaways and shake-off-the-winter spa and fitness packages.

Sixers getting greedy, look to repeat history

Team battles Celtics for right to advance to Eastern Conference finals ◗ Ghosts of 1982 on everyone's minds ◗ Collins wants to see same ending ◗ Rivers knows Game 7 will be intense

Prior to Wednesday night's win, coach Doug Collins showed his team the tape of the 1982 Sixers knocking off the Celtics in a memorable Game 7 at the Boston Garden.

Thirty years later, the 2011-12 Sixers are in position to write their own legendary tale — with a much different cast of characters.

The 1982 team was led by stars Julius Erving, Maurice Cheeks, Andrew Toney and Darryl Dawkins. They went 58-24 in the regular season, earning the East's No. 3 seed. This Sixers team has no such superstars and limped into the playoffs as the eight seed.

But now that they're surprisingly one win away from the conference finals, they aren't just settling for a good story. They want the sequel.

"I want more. I'm going to get greedy. We've fought and worked, and gone through a lot. We've grown," Collins said.

In order to advance to the NBA's final four for the first time since 2001, the Sixers will have to overcome the terrors of playing a Game 7 on the road. Since that 1982 win, there have been 60 Game 7s in NBA history. The road team has won just 11 of them. These Celtics went 24-9 at home in the regular season and are 5-1 there in the playoffs.

Predictably, the Celtics are downplaying their advantage.

"You can't rely on just being at home," coach Doc Rivers said. "In the end, it always comes down to players making shots and making plays. That's what it will be on Saturday."

Graham sets out to shed the dreaded 'bust' label

Former top pick finally healthy, ready to contribute • Third-year Eagle missed most of 2011 after tearing ACL • Reid impressed early in OTAs

It's hard not to like Brandon Graham.

The third-year player out of Michigan always has a thousand-watt smile on his face, and he never refuses interview requests from reporters hovering around his locker stall. He's as stand-up a guy as there is on the 2012 Eagles.

Still, looking at his numbers — three career sacks, with 17 total tackles — it's hard not to label him a bust, or at the very least give him an incomplete grade. Graham knows it. He's working on it.

"Right now, I'm a bust, so I'm going to deal with that," Graham said. "I'm a bust and I'm going to keep being a bust, even when I make plays."

When Graham has been healthy, he has showed promise. Problem is, the speed-end just hasn't been able to stay on the field. A late-season ACL tear ended his rookie season, then lingered and caused problems for most of last season. He's played in just 16 total games since being drafted 13th overall in the 2010 NFL draft. He finally appears to be 100 percent.

"Just keep working, keep getting better," Graham said.

Andy Reid said he has looked good in early OTAs. The coach speculated that Graham might have something extra to prove.

"I don't know if you'd call it a chip on your shoulder, but he wants to do well," Reid said. "He wants to prove that he's a quality NFL player and I think he's on a mission to do that."

▶ Brandon Graham has seen limited action since being drafted due to injury. He has three sacks in parts of two NFL seasons.
